BANDITS AND CASHIER STAGE GUN BATTLE

T. J. Pittman Escapes Without Injury in Rain of Bullets.

HIS GUN FAILED TO WORK

Robber Trio Flees After Scooping Money from Counter.

After holding two employes at bay with revolvers and sending a shower of bullets at a third, three men held up and robbed the Caledonia bank early this afternoon.

The robbery took place about 1:30 p. m. and was staged at a time when only T. J. Pittman, cashier, Lynn Underwood and N. D. Hill, assistant cashiers, were in the bank.

The robbers obtained a small sum not exceeding $50, according to estimates of bank officials.

Two of the men entered the bank while the third remained in their automobile. The car was parked across the railroad tracks about 100 yards from the bank.

When the two men entered, Hill, who was at the window, believed they were corn cutters. He paid little attention to them when they appeared to be indorsing checks.

Suddenly he found himself covered with guns in the hands of both men. They ordered Hill and Underwood to lie on the floor.

The attention of Pittman, who was working in the directors' room in the rear of the bank room, was attracted when one of the men jumped over the cage around the teller's booth. Pittman seized a rifle and attempted to shoot one of the robbers but the gun failed to discharge. He was forced to retreat to the directors' room to escape a barrage of bullets when both robbers turned their guns on him.

After the shooting melee the man behind the cage scooped up a number of bills, mostly of $1 denomination, lying on the counter. Both men fled from the bank through a rear door.

The machine used by the robbers had been parked in front of the home of Harley Cardiff, chief of the Erie police here. Cardiff and Wayne Dills, bookkeeper for the Monnette and Cleveland mill pursued the bandits in Dills' machine but lost their trail as they neared route 98 north of Caledonia.

After leaving the bank the robbers drove north on Main street; then west on Harrison street toward route 98.

Police reported that they had obtained the license number of the bandits' machine.

Their car, bank officials said, was painted green. The men were unmasked and appeared to be between 22 and 28 years of age. There were no customers in the bank at the time of the robbery.

Sheriff C. C. Frye and Deputies Cosgrove and Baldwin responded to the call from the bank about 1:30 p. m.

STATESMEN DISCUSS ECONOMIC PROBLEMS

French, German Leaders Open Parley on European Conditions in Berlin.

By The Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 28 — Premier Laval of France and his foreign minister, Aristide Briand, today shook hands with President Von Hindenburg and went into conference with German statesmen on measures of cooperation to restore the confidence of Europe.

The conversation between President Von Hindenburg and his guests was purely formal. After the customary exchange of greetings he expressed the hope that they would solve the economic problems involved by united efforts and they replied in a similar vein.

Their parley with Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius was understood to evolve around the question as to whether Franco-German economic cooperation was possible on a large scale by the financing of Germany's surplus labor with France's surplus capital. They have already reached an agreement in principle with Bruening and Curtius on a non-political consultative committee, composed of state officials, industrial leaders and employes, which would seek to iron out salient differences in viewpoint on trade matters.

When M. Laval and M. Briand arrived last night they received a striking ovation from a crowd of well-wishers shouting "Hoch Deutschland" and "Vive la Paix." Nevertheless, they were protected by the strongest police guard in years to prevent possible unfriendly manifestations.

Chancellor Bruening said at a dinner for the visitors [illegible]

81st Marion County Fair To Open Gates Tuesday

Racing Stables Overflow as Entries Run High; Grounds Hum with Activity as Stands and Exhibits Go Up.

With the entry lists crowded and an overflow of harness horses awaiting race contests, the wheels of what promises to be the greatest agricultural fair in the history of the county were getting into motion today.

Today and Sunday found the fairgrounds bustling with the activity of exhibitors getting their displays in place and concession men erecting mechanical rides, lunch and soft drink stands. The final rush to put exhibits and concessions in shape will be made Tuesday, when the four-day fair program officially begins.

An added feature on the Thursday program will be the appearance of L. S. Guthery of LaRue, state director of agriculture. The director will be asked to make a short speech in the grandstand during the afternoon program.

When the deadline for entries had been passed Saturday night, Secretary Carl Sifritt reported every department of the fair will be well supported. His problem this morning was to find quarters for harness horses, flocking here from every section of the state. More than 150 horses will be stabled on the ground before the race program starts Wednesday, the secretary predicted.

Free automobile parking space will be available on the grounds throughout the week, Secretary Sifritt said this morning. It was falsely rumored in some sections of the county that a charge will be made for automobile admission, the secretary said.

The Marion County Agricultural society board members have planned a gala time for fairgoers this year. Every possible means of making the fair program more attractive has been used. The county's eighty-first fair will be one of its greatest, if the weatherman cooperates.

Premiums totaling $4,000 have been posted for displays of every kind of livestock farm produce and farm handiwork produced in this vicinity. The premium list has been carefully revised by the board to fit the trend of rural activity. Eight grange exhibits, juvenile grange displays, school exhibits and a junior fair exposition will be among the features of the exhibits.

Three afternoons of harness racing will attract track followers from all parts of the state. Purses totalling $3,200 are offered.

To Give Elaborate Rodeo

The night program will be offered four nights. Beginning Tuesday night, King Bros. rodeo with 35 persons and 65 head of livestock will present an elaborate program in front of the grandstand. This show is promised to combine all the excitement of a wild-west show with a touch of pageantry depicting pioneer methods of handling mail, express and passengers. The rodeo program is slated to begin nightly at 8.

The summarized fair program calls for finishing touches Tues-

MINE STRIKERS RESUME WORK

More Than 1,000 Return to Jobs in Athens County Today.

ENDS WEEK'S WALKOUT

Acceptance of Gov. White's Plan of Settlement Announced at Meeting.

By The Associated Press

MILLFIELD, O., Sept. 28—More than a thousand coal miners trudged back to their jobs in all but two Athens county mines today, ending a week's walkout that started in a dispute over the method on selecting check weighmen.

At a mass meeting here yesterday the miners voted to accept a plan submitted by Governor George White under which only employes of the mines concerned can vote on the selection of check weighmen.

Previously there was no such restriction.

The men will not return to work at the Sunday Creek Coal company's No. 5 mine at Murray City and the Western Fuel company's 10-x mine at Goose Run until new check weighmen are selected. These two mines were the center of the dispute.

Approximately 1,500 miners, their wives and children attended the meeting and stood in a drizzling rain while their leaders told them the new agreement was not satisfactory, but must be accepted for the present to escape the hardships of a winter without work.

The speakers also declared they would continue to work for recognition of the United Mine workers in this field, which is now on an "open shop" basis.

Representing Governor White were Col. John S. Shelter and Lieut. L. O. Windom of the Ohio National guard, who were stoned as they drove into the strike zone several days ago.

Col. Shelter and Lieut. Windom will supervise the elections of check weighmen at the 10-x and No. 5 mines to prevent any interference.

EVIDENCE FOUND IN COLLINGS CASE

Discovery of Clothing in Water Further Substantiates Widow's Story.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 — Mrs. Benjamin P. Collings' oft-repeated story of her husband's murder by two men who boarded their cruiser on Long Island sound was further substantiated today by the finding of two pairs of trousers and a bathing suit in the waters of Cove Neck.

Deputy Sheriff Kehlendeck, acting on orders of District Attorney Alexander G. Else, found the articles yesterday as he was grappling in the sound. The garments were covered with weeds and sand, indicating they had been in the water for some weeks. Collings, a Stamford, Conn., engineer, was drowned on Sept. 9.

Mrs. Collings had told Suffolk officials that two men, one about 20, the other about 18, threw her husband into the sound, and took her away in a small boat [illegible]

NANKING, China, Sept. 28—A mob of students, incensed at what they believed was his failure to obtain intervention of the League of Nations in the Sino-Japanese crisis, attacked and seriously injured Foreign Minister C. T. Wang in his office here today.

Dr. Wang received several severe wounds on his chest, his clothing was practically stripped from him and his office was wrecked.

Although he had been warned he probably would be the object of a student attack, the foreign minister refused to leave his office, declaring: "I shall remain at my post and attend to my duties."

Shortly thereafter, the mob rushed the foreign office, crashed into Dr. Wang's suite and attacked him with clubs and inkpots. He was rescued finally by a group of servants, who fought their way

They had been given eight rides, and had walked only a few miles between the two cities. Mrs. Reese's only luggage was a small paper-wrapper package containing clean clothing for the children.

Wednesday or Thursday the mother and her two children plan to start again on their hitch-hiking to their Toledo home at 1813 Twenty-Second street.

AKRON MAKES FOURTH TEST

Takes Off at 10:44 on Trip Planned To Try Turning Radius.

DUE TO FLY SIX HOURS

Giant Craft Left Outside Hangar Last Night for First Time.

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Sept. 28—The U. S. navy dirigible Akron took off at 10:44 a. m. today for its fourth test flight from the Akron airport.

The big ship was sent aloft from the mooring mast to which it had been anchored at 12:10 a. m. after a test flight last night. The ground crew was ordered to be ready for the re-landing after today's flight at 5:30 p. m.

Safely landed after a late night flight through fog and rain, the Akron was left outside her dock and the crew slept aboard for the first time in preparation for the fourth test flight today.

The world's largest Zeppelin was moored to her mast after ending her third test flight and completing the "shop test" of her eight engines, rudders and various instruments. She had gone aloft at 8:32 p. m. Sunday.

Today's flight is to test the turning radius. The 785-foot aerial giant requires between 3,000 and 5,000 feet in which to turn about. She was scheduled to make six turns above the Akron airport, with instruments posted at a number of places to record the path of the ship, in a six-hour flight.

Mooring Mast Stuck

The landing early today was delayed more than an hour and a half, because the 110-ton portable mooring mast had become fast in the mud of the airport, defying the efforts of the ground crew of 250 men until nearly midnight.

Meanwhile the ship cruised around Akron, once going as far as the edge of Cleveland with Governor George White, the chief guest passenger.

PERMIT GIVEN FOR BUS LINE OPERATION

Route To Parallel Pennsylvania R. R. from E. Palestine to Dixon.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28—The state utilities commission today, with Judge Frank Geiger dissenting, authorized the Pennsylvania General Transit company of Philadelphia, a subsidiary of the Pennsylvania railroad, to operate a bus line through Ohio from East Palestine to Dixon, O.

The line was ordered to parallel as nearly as possible the tracks of the Ft. Wayne division of the railroad. It will pass through Salem, East Liverpool, Canton, Wooster, Mansfield, Galion, Marion and Lima.

The application was rejected once by the commission with Commissioner John Bricker dissenting, but since the state supreme court has established a rule in such cases under the authority of which the order was issued today.

Judge Geiger, in his dissenting opinon, said the roads laid out by the bus line did not parallel the railroad tracks in many places and therefore the new line would be in competition with other established bus services.

BATTERY SHOP SAFE LOOTED

Thieves Get $200 at Brown Store; Force Door Open.

ARMED ROBBER ESCAPES

Takes $80 from Attendant at Ross Wertz Filling Station.

A holdup and three burglaries here late Saturday night and early Sunday morning netted nearly $400, police reported this morning. Nothing was obtained in two attempted burglaries.

More than $200 was obtained in a burglary at the C. O. Brown battery service store at 133 west Church street late Sunday night or early this morning, according to Donald Brown, son of the proprietor.

Holdup Station

A lone bandit at at Ross Wertz filling station at Hill and south Prospect streets held up John Rife, the attendant, with a drawn revolver, escaping south towards Columbus in a sedan with $60 in cash and $20 in checks. The R. W. Williams grocery store at 812 Bennett street was entered about 10 p. m. Saturday, a loss being reported of $65 in merchandise. Approximately $4 was obtained in a burglary late Saturday night or Sunday morning at a grocery store at 436 Van Buren street, Hazel Johnson, proprietress, reported to police Sunday morning.

The holdup at the Wertz station occurred about 8:30 p. m. Sunday, Rife reported. A young man in a sedan drove up by the front door and asked for a can of cup grease. Rife waited on him and when he handed the change to the man who had followed him into the office, the robber drew a revolver and said, "Give me the rest of that." After obtaining the money, the robber forced Rife into the furnace room and fled southward. Rife obtained the license number and description of the car which was broadcast 10 minutes later from the Columbus police radio station, local police reported. The robber left the can of grease in his departure, Rife said. He described the man as being about 26 years old, hatless and without a topcoat and dressed in a dark suit.

Enter Plant

A burglary at the Marion Steel Body Company's plant on Monroe avenue early Sunday morning failed to bring any results as the burglar or burglars were unsuccessful in attempting to open the safe. Entry was made into the factory through a window and into the office through a door which was broken down. J. L. Grissinger, an official at the plant, said today that the safe was empty as no money is kept at the plant office. Tools left by the safe lead to the theory that the burglars were frightened away.

Breaking a lock off the alley door, a burglar entered the Brown store, entered the office and broke the combination off the safe, escaping with over $200 in currency. A similar attempt at the Drake battery service store across the alley failed. [illegible]

Harding Ties Columbus South 6-6 in First Grid Start

INTERESTING SEASON ENDED BY AMERICAN ASSOCIATION LOOP

St. Paul Grabs Bunting, Prepares for Joust with Rochester Red Wings.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Members of the American Association baseball clubs, with the exception of St. Paul's champions, today were making plans to go to the world series, on hunting trips or sell insurance, or whatever they do between playing seasons, for the 1931 campaign is closed.

The Saints this week will open the "little world series" with Rochester, champion of the International league, and hope to make it three out of four over the Red Wings.

A final blast of four double-headers yesterday finished up one of the most interesting campaigns in the history of the circuit. St. Paul divided a pair with Milwaukee, losing the opener, 4 to 3, and winning the other one 11 to 3. The second place Kansas City Blues also split, winning the first game from Minneapolis, 4 to 3, and losing the second 8 to 7, while Indianapolis dropped its opener with Columbus, 2 to 1, and battled to a 2 to 2 draw with the Red Birds in the eight inning second contest. Louisville and Toledo finished up with a shutout party, the Mud Hens winning the initial encounter, 10 to 0, and bowing in the second, 3 to 0.

The race, tighter than a drum head until the Saints began to pull away early in July, served to keep interest alive and the turnstiles clicking. After the champions had moved so far out in front that there was little doubt as to the outcome of the race, Kansas City and Indianapolis, a pair of second division punching bags, began drives that carried them into second and third places, respectively, as well as holding the customers' interest.

MANSFIELD IN EASY VICTORY SATURDAY

Talbott Races 90 Yards To Give Bucyrus Team 7-6 Victory.

While Harding High was inaugurating the football season with a 6-6 tie with Columbus South last week-end Mansfield Tygers were clawing out a 40 to 15 victory over Garrettsville High, a class B organization. This was the first game of the season for the Murphymen and the team showed a powerful attack. Garrettsville's ability to cross the goal line can be attributed more to Murphy's trying out substitute material than to a particular defensive weakness of Mansfield.

Bucyrus High eked out a 7-6 victory over Bexley in another game in which an N. C. O. team took part. Talbott, Bucyrus quarterback, was the hero of the game as he grabbed a Bexley kickoff and raced 90 yards to a touchdown and then booted the extra point.

Chick Young's Shelby Whippets held a supposedly superior team, hailing from Norwalk to a scoreless tie Saturday but lost one of the team's standbys in accomplishing the feat. Captain Heine Miller twisted an ankle during the game and will be out of the lineup for several weeks, Sunday reports said.

PRESIDENTS FLASH SURPRISING POWER TO GAIN DEADLOCK

Favorites Perhaps, but Despite This Bulldogs Take Awful Pasting from Locals.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK
Sports Editor, The Star

HARDING High's 1931 football team inaugurated the football season Saturday night by holding the strong Columbus South High team to a 6-6 deadlock. The game was played under the lights at South stadium in Columbus before a crowd estimated at 2,500 persons.

Flashing an offense that literally ripped the South defenses to shreds for three-quarters of the game, Harding completely outplayed the Capital city aggregation. Indeed, the South Bulldogs were extremely fortunate to gain a tie. The score is no indication as to how the game really went. The Presidents had by far the better team on the field.

Harding wasted no time in getting their attack started as the game got under way. South won the toss and elected to kick, Keller being downed with the ball on the Harding 20 yard stripe. Dick Morgan, quarterback for Harding, played the game safe and punted on the second down after picking up about four on the first play, booting the oval to South's 40. South promptly kicked back to Harding's 15.

Harding Opens Up

Harding here launched an offensive that carried the ball almost to midfield where Morgan booted the oval deep into South territory. The first period ended with South backed up on its five yard line.

Coverdale, South quarterback, ripped off the first gain of consequence for his team as the second period started when he got away for nine yards around the end, and then picked up about three more for the first down of the game for South. Eric Williams of Harding was injured on the play but remained in the game.

Harding's line tightened at this point and forced South to kick again, Morgan taking Coverdale's kick in midfield. Keller picked up five around the flank for Harding and Guthrie kicked out of bounds on South's seven yard marker. Jones fumbled the ball for South and lost two yards forcing Coverdale to kick, Morgan taking the ball on South's 40. The teams again exchanged kicks, Morgan making a beautiful 20 yard return of Coverdale's mighty 55 yard boot, being downed on Harding's 40. Harding launched another offensive at this point that carried the ball to the South 25 yard stripe as the first half ended.

South Takes Lead

It appeared for a short time in the third period that Harding had shot its wad and was no longer able to hold the high-powered South lineup in check. Coverdale and Jones tore up the Harding defenses in a big way, carrying the ball for gains on almost every play. South lost one chance to score early in the period as Jones fumbled near the goal line and Clay recovered for Harding. However, South soon regained possession of the ball and smashed its way towards the goal. Coverdale got away on an 18 yard jaunt around left end to score at this point, givin South a 6-0 lead. Clay blocked Dornalfe's attempt to place kick the extra point.

The play see-sawed back and forth for the remainder of the period, Harding stopping South most of the time but at the same time failing to find the punch which was present in the opening half.

It didn't take Harding long, to get started in the fourth quarter. Coverdale kicked to Morgan as the period got under way, Morgan clicking off another neat 35 yard ramble to place the ball on South's 25 yard line. Harding then proceeded to lose the ball on a fumble which momentarily cost them the opportunity to cross the goal line.

Morgan Ties Count

Coverdale almost ruined Harding's scoring possibilities at this point when he booted the ball well past mid-field with a soaring 55-yard kick. Harding promptly made up the loss as Morgan flipped a pair of aerials to Lindsay, the first good for 30 yards and the second for 20. Harding gained one break at this point as a third pass was allowed on account of interference on the part of South, placing the ball on the South four yard line. Morgan then cracked the line for a touchdown, deadlocking the count. Lindsay attempted to buck the line for the point on a fake play but failed by inches to cross the line.

Harding continued the offensive for the rest of the game and was rapidly battering its way toward South's goal as the game ended with the ball near mid-field.

SMALLER TEAMS PUT UP VALIANT BATTLES AGAINST MAJOR FOES

Northwest Conference Elevens Hold Bigger Opponents to Small Scores.

BY JAMES L. RENICK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The gods of football must have looked with alarm as they viewed the carnage on gridirons Saturday, where Ohio teams performed.

They saw a trio of Ohio conference elevens, not the strongest in the loop but nevertheless members, bow to northwest Ohio conference teams, heretofore offered up as sacrifices to the game in early season.

In the west they saw a strong Buckeye Athletic association combination lose its first contest in 20 starts.

To the east they saw two other Ohio teams crushed and beaten under powerful offenses of heavier teams.

And to the south they saw little Rio Grande college, one of the smallest in the state hold the University of Cincinnati bearcats to a 19 to 6 score.

Case Surprised

Perhaps the biggest surprise occurred in Cleveland where Findlay gave the Case scientists a football lesson, 13 to 7. Defiance, another northwest eleven, set back Hiram, 19 to 0, and Bowling Green held Baldwin-Wallace to a scoreless tie. Bluffton was the only northwest team to meet defeat and that by only two touchdowns at the hands of a larger Wooster eleven.

It was a mighty disastrous day for schools leaving the Buckeye state. Ohio Northern was crushed under the Army machine at West Point, 61 to 0, while Miami displayed surprising weakness and received a good clawing by the Pittsburgh Panther, 60 to 0. Ohio university found Big Ten company a little too strong and despite a veteran team, lost 7 to 6 to Indiana, the first defeat in 20 starts for the Bobcat.

Princes Unimpressive

The Student Princes at Heidelberg, undefeated last year in the Ohio conference, looked none too impressive in scoring a 14 to 9 victory over Hope college of Holland, Mich., one of the smallest schools in the Wolverine circuit.

If early season games may be taken as a criterion, the Ohio football situation is likely to be a muddled affair before many week-ends have passed.

With low scores prevailing in most games, it didn't take much research to find the high scorers in the state. Two of them, Schnur of Dayton and Grimes of Mount Union, each scored a trio of touchdowns to lead the field with 18 points. A quartet of others, Plummer of Wittenberg, Fearn of Dayton, Jordan of St. Xavier and Wilcox of Wooster, ran across two each for 12 points.

A survey of figures made over the week-end show a dearth of accurate place and drop kickers. There were 42 touchdowns scored by Ohio elevens and only 12 points after touchdowns registered, and three of those by line-plunging and two more by passing.

ROWLEY VICTOR

Tramps Over Field of 18 To Win Amateur Golf Tournament

Cliff Rowley triumphed over a select field of Marion county golfers yesterday in the Marion county amateur golf championship match, played over the Mar-o-Del course. Rowley turned in a score of 170 for the 36 holes, beating the best efforts of Alva Newell and H. W. Hane by two strokes. Hane and Newell are both members of the Marion Country club while Rowley does his golfing under the banner of the Mar-O-Del club.

Scores in the tournament were rather high, due mostly to the high cross winds sweeping the course. Eighteen players competed for the trophy offered by the Mar-O-Del club for the champion amateur.

Denmark Whitewashed.

The Morral baseball team applied a liberal coat of whitewash yesterday to Denmark on the Denmark diamond, winning the game 17-0 behind a barrage of 20 safe hits. Batteries for the game were, Morral, Mercer and Koontz. Denmark, Belt, Baider and Williams.

Umpires Selected.

By International News Service

CHICAGO, Sept. 28—Two umpires will serve during the forthcoming world series had been named today by President Will Harridge of the American league, who chose R. F. Nallin and W. F. McGowan.

Here They Are! Irish 1931 Regulars

Gleaned from Harding Game

IF moral victories could be chalked up in the record books, Harding would have one to its credit as a result of its 6-6 deadlock with the South High Bulldogs last Saturday night. Harding completely outplayed and outgained the Capital city eleven. Thirteen first downs were collected by the Presidents. South managed to scrape together a pair. One of these came in the first half, another in the second.

South was forced to play on the defensive for at least three quarters of the game. Harding's forward wall constanty ripped gaping holes in the enemy's front line defenses, through which Marion backs filtered for consistent gains.

In the second half of the game Harding amply substantiated a statement in this publication last week which ran something like this: Harding has a team of the hardest fighting youngsters which has represented the Red and Black for several seasons, etc.

South came back with a rush in the third period and swept Harding before it with a series of smashing line plays and speedy end runs, climaxing the offensive with the first touchdown of the game. And what happened. Harding immediately turned loose an offensive all its own and far more potent than anything South had previously demonstrated. As yet the Presidents haven't suggested they know the meaning of the word, quit. Here's hoping they will continue blissfully ignorant of its existence!

Press observers of three publications and even some members of South High's own team, are inclined to believe that umpire Smith pulled somewhat of a "boner" when he ruled Lindsey failed to cross the goal line in the attempt to buck the extra point. Lindsey appeared to have crossed the goal line and to have then been shoved back by a concerted defensive attack of South. However, Smith's word goes. The score is still tied.

It would be altogether unfair to pick out one Harding player and name him as the star. Morgan and Lindsey in the backfield were probably the most sensational, but no more valuable than Keller and Guthrie. On the line, Ling, Clay and Williams probably were more noticeable than the rest but neither did they contribute any more to the net result than their team mates. Continued teamwork such as shown Saturday will give more than one opponent a bad afternoon before the season is completed.

While one is singing the praise of Harding it might be well to remember that South had a pair of boys who turned in stellar performances; Coverdale in the backfield and Strausse on the line were the shining lights of South. Coverdale's brilliant punting is all that kept the Bulldogs in the game, while Strausse did some nice work on the left flank. Without them—well it would have been nice for Harding had they been out of South's lineup.

A's Slugging Power Rated Superior To Cardinals

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 — The world's champion Athletics have a decided edge over the Cardinals in offensive strength, measured by the power of their long range guns and the ability to strike swiftly in the pinches. The Cards excel in speed on the bases.

There are weak spots in the A's batting order but the dynamite is likely to explode any time Al Simmons, Mickey Cochrane or Jimmy Fox steps into a fast ball.

Gabby Street regards Simmons as the greatest menace hereby being in complete accord with American league managers Gabby also recalls Cochrane's slugging a year ago as well as Foxx' home run that broke up the crucial fifth game. This trio, along with such timely batsmen as Bishop, Haas and Miller comprise the principal attacking power that Grimes, Hallahan, Derringer and other Cardinal sharpshooters must worry about.

Batting About Even

The Athletics, in the season's unofficial averages show a club batting mark of .287 to the Cardinals' .285. The slugging records showed a more conspicuous difference in favor of the A's who collected 115 home runs against only 58 for the Cards.

The last world's series told much the same story as these figures. The club marks were nothing to brag about, only .200 for the Cards, and .197 for the A's. The world champions, however, made 18 of their 35 hits good for extra bases, including six home runs whereas the Cardinals registered only 13 extra base drives in their total of 38 hits.

Charley Gelbert, sensational young shortstop, was the batting leader of the Cards a year ago in the championship fray with .316. Sunny Jim Bottomley, bothered by a hand injury, hit only .045 and was a "bust." Chick Hafey hit a mere .273. These two sluggers have been hitting harder than ever this year despite the less lively ball, and are counted upon to redeem themselves.

A Little "If"

If Bottomley and Hafey can hold their own with Simmons and Cochrane or Foxx in the long-range work when booming drives are needed, it will be anybody's series. The difference is that the Cardinal pair were comparatively easy for Grove and Earnshaw last October, whereas Simmons and Cochrane and Fox manifested their ability to shellack the best pitching the Cards could offer. Simmons hit .374 to lead both clubs a year ago and has just finished winning his second straight American league battle.

Frank Frisch hit poorly in the last series but his all-around record as a "money player" is superlative. The Cardinals' second-sacker has pounded his way well above the .300 mark this season after a slow start. Pepper Martin, George Watkins, Jimmy Wilson and Gelbert all pack a dangerous punch.

Records and Near Records of 1931 Baseball Campaign

BY LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28—A few highlights, records and nearrecords made in major league pennant races that closed yesterday:

As a result of changes made in the ball, no club batted .300. Last year nine of the 16 big league outfits hit .300 or better.

Chick Hafey's .349 percentage is the lowest made by a National league batting champion since Edd Roush's .321 took the crown in 1919.

The National league "snail" ball cut the home run output by exactly 400. The total was 492 against 892 last year. In the American league the total was 576 against 674 last year. Year's home run total for both leagues was 1,068 against 1,766 last season.

Earl Webb, Boston Red Sox, set new record with 67 two-base hits. Previous record of 64 made by George Burns of Cleveland in 1926.

Cincinnati with 195 double plays broke its own record of 194 made in 1928.

Athletics set new mark by making only 140 errors. Previous low records was 144 made by Yankees in 1923 Washington, with 143, also finished under the old mark this year.

Excluding Tom Zachary's record of 12 victories and no defeats a few years ago, Lefty Grove set all-time pitching percentage record of .886 (31 wins, 4 losses) Previous record made by Joe Wood in 1911—34 wins, 5 defeats, 872 percentage. Grove also takes strikeout honors for both leagues with 171. First pitcher to win 31 games since Jim Bagby did it with Cleveland in 1919.

Lou Gehrig of Yankees set new American league mark of 182 runs batted in, breaking league record of 175 he set in 1927. Failed to equal National league record of 190 set last year by Hack Wilson of Cubs. Also contributed new wrinkle by tying Ruth for home run crown with 46

The Cardinals, with 101 victories, became first National league team to reach century mark since New York Giants won 101 games.

Ben Chapman of Yankees stole 61 bases, best record since Sam Rice of Washington pilfered 63 sacks in 1920.

CARDINALS EXPECTED TO GIVE ATHLETICS A TOUGH STRUGGLE

Both World's Series Entrants Boast Stronger Lineups Than in 1930.

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Finishing the 1931 major league season with margins of 13 and 13½ games respectively over the New York teams, which wound up in second place, the St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Athletics have given promise through their year's performance of an exciting struggle in the world's series.

Both the American and National league champions not only wound up with better records than they did in winning the same pennants last year, but turned in more victories than any Athletic or Cardinal teams that ever captured a championship. Although they took a severe trouncing from the New York Yankees in their closing game yesterday, losing by a 13 to 1 count when their pitching aces, Grove, Earnshaw and Walberg all were walloped freely, the A's wound up with 107 victories and 45 defeats.

Cards Win Two

The Cardinals finished strongly yesterday, winning from Cincinnati, 6 to 2, and 5 to 3, behind the pitching of Paul Derringer and Sylvester Johnson, and checked in with 101 victories and 53 defeats.

With several places in the standings still undecided until all the games were over, there was little dullness in the closing day's program for the big leagues. The three-cornered battle in the American league's second division wound up with St. Louis, Boston and Detroit in that order. The Browns took two games from the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 8 and 2 to 1 to capture fifth place by the margin of a single point over Boston's Red Sox. The Sox gained a virtual tie for the place when they downed the Washington Senators, holders of second place up to Saturday, 4 to 2.

Detroit lost out in the struggle when Cleveland pounded out an 8 to 5 victory in the last game

Phils in Sixth

Philadelphia settled the matter of the one doubtful place in the National league season by beating Boston 5 to 3 in the first game of a doubleheader, clinching sixth place. Boston easily pounded out a 12-2 victory in the second game.

Brooklyn and New York finished all square for the year when the Robins pounded out a 12 to 3 victory behind Clark in the first game of a twin bill and darkness halted the second before four innings were completed. Timely home runs enabled the Chicago Cubs to take two games from Pittsburgh, 3 to 1 and 8 to 4, with Vince Barton's homer with the bases full as the climax of the last encounter.

Harpster Beats Giants.

Harpster's baseball team yesterday defeated the Marion Merchant Giants for the third time this season on the Lincoln park diamond by a 10-9 score. The Giants rallied for five runs in the ninth but fell short of a tie by a single tally. Batteries for the game: Giants, W. Adams and Jones; Harpster, Edgington and Bentley.

The Giants will play Upper Sandusky at Marseilles next Sunday.

Buick

1930 BUICK 118 inch wheel base Four Door Sedan. This Buick was the property of a prominent Marion citizen and is like a new car. Its mechanical performance is fully guaranteed because it has been carefully inspected in our own shops. This car is equipped with six ply Goodyear tires with many thousand miles left.

1929 BUICK Master Six Four Door Sedan. This big green Buick seats five passengers comfortably. It was so carefully driven and cared for by its former owner that its finish, upholstery and tires show little wear. It offers all the luxury, equipment and performance of a big car, yet it costs no more than a small new car of lesser quality.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

The first frost of the season last night is soon to bring an end to fresh and home-grown vegetables on the local markets. Muskmelons are practically off the markets now, dealers say, with a few selling for five and ten cents. Supplies of home-grown tomatoes and mangoes are light today and will be replaced in a few days with shipped-in head lettuce, celery and other articles, dealers said.

Demand for onions was heavy with light supplies expected to be built up today. Prices were about ten pounds for 25 cents. Sweet potatoes were reported as moving well at 10 pounds for 25 cents. Squash and pumpkins, new arrivals on the market, were selling from 10 to 25 cents each. Apples were bringing 25 cents for 10 pounds with bushel apples expected soon. Watermelons have practically disappeared from local markets. Peaches continue to be scarce with a light demand with home-grown varieties selling for around 70 cents on most markets.

GRAINS SHOW DOWN TREND

Instability of Sterling Has Bearish Influence on Market.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Sept. 28 — Grains showed an early downward trend today, affected by instability of sterling. Sweden and Norway's abandonment of the gold standard was also construed as bearish. Opening unchanged to ⅜ cent off, wheat afterward sagged further. Corn started ¼@⅜ down and subsequently underwent an additional sag.

Adding to the bearish influence of foreign exchange was announcement that the official estimate of the Hungarian wheat group was now 73,600,000 bushels, against earlier estimates of 65,036,000. A detailed report which attracted much attention showed that the average price of wheat at 500 shipping points in the United States was 37.1 cents a bushel, compared with 68 cents a year ago, and that the average price at Canadian stations was 35.2 against 35.6. North Dakota, Kansas and Ohio prices, representing respectively spring wheat, hard winter and soft winter wheat, indicated that hard winter prices had been cut more than those of spring wheat or soft winter.

Liberal receipts of corn in Chicago acted as a weight on values, and so too did favorable weather for field work. Chicago arrivals were 158 cars, surpassing the figures both of a week and a year ago. Receipts of corn and other primary markets, however, were relatively small, 479,000 bushels compared with 618,000 on the corresponding day last week and 703,000 at this time last year.

Turning New Pages

WITH EDNA S. DUTTON

READERS who enjoy the delightfully human and readable stories written by Alice Grant Rosman will not be disappointed in her new novel, "The Sixth Journey." One knows Miss Rosman's characters so intimately after the first chapter that instead of being just an interested bystander, off come coats and other excess baggage and the reader finds himself not only with them but of them.

Trying to right the misdirected engineering of three or four managing and designing persons looms as a big job at the outset but Hilary Revel does it without any attempt to set herself on a pedestal or win a halo.

Hilary sees much of life as she travels abroad with her brother, Hugh, a shattered war veteran, and her experiences throughout the 10 years with him and her acceptance of her family upon her return proclaims her the sportsman she really is.

The story centers around little Judy, John Falconer's daughter, who after serving the purpose of making Sylvia, his beautiful wife, a heroine in her own eyes, doesn't seem to be wanted anywhere.

Living with her father's sister Gertrude, who is the guiding hand of some dozens of committees and welfare organizations, is not the happiest kind of a life and to save John any embarrassment following the announcement of his engagement to Hilary, and incidentally keep Judy out of sight the little girl finds herself living with Tracy, Sylvia's former nurse, out in the country.

Judy's cousin Prudence, turns out to be a real fellow despite her modern opinions and deportment and it is to her Judy turns when life with Tracy becomes unbearable. Despite her vow not to be a "managing" wife Hilary takes a hand in affairs and diplomatically brings little Judy into a new realm of living and a future of accomplishments.

John and Hilary meet early in the first chapter on shipboard where both are seeking solitude. John is a famous architect and Hilary has written travel books. The stand they take in running their own affairs despite their families furnishes occasional cheers throughout the story.

"Martin's Summer" by Vicki Baum

THE competence which made "Grand Hotel" tries its hand at a bit of lighter reading in "Martin's Summer." Vicki Baum depicts a young scientist who also is an athlete. In love with one girl, other women at the summer resort where he is swimming instructor interrupt his courtship with their various blandishments and he literally gets lost in love.

Another in the same vein is "Marriage in Blue," by A. E. Fisher. Readers who enjoy a detailed report on the soul-wrestling, love-makings, heart-breakings and gin drinkings of the non-painting artists and not-writing authors of Paris will like it.

Two New Books of Interest

JOHN FORT'S "God in the Straw Pen," was the August choice of the Book League of America. The story deals with revivalism in Georgia in the early part of the nineteenth century. Mr. Fort draws them realistically as they look forward with anticipatory delight to the camp meeting at which they can lose their inhibitions in the mad stampede to the crude straw-pen confessional.

"Thursday April" is a more humorous treatment of West Virginia hill folk. The story is Alberta Pierson Hannum's first novel and deals with people she has observed at first hand.

Author Discovers New Race

IN the jungles of Bengal Vivian Meik discovered an aboriginal race hitherto unknown to science. Ignorant of fire, cooking or clothing these small people are the most primitive race known to science. Mr. Meik, the first white man they had ever seen, was able to win their confidence, to live with them and to photograph them. He found them a pitiable, defenseless and terrorstricken handful of human beings. Only occasionally are they able to escape from fear to laughter and love. But in the full of the moon they abandon themselves to the sensuous beauty of their tribal dances, accompanied only by the deep throb of a drum centuries old. Their dance the author, who has spent 18 years in the far places of the earth, describes in an amazing chapter as the most eerie, graceful tribal performance he has ever seen. Meik calls his book "The People of the Leaves."

Lieutenant "Slim" Evans of the Army air service border patrol along the Rio Grande, favorite of a million readers, starts in this book to combine a career on the race track with his duties as a ranger of the air. Miss Aldrich Has New Book

LIFE in one of the prairie states in the modern day has given Bess Street Aldrich a subject for her new novel, "A White Bird Flying."

The pioneers, the stalwarts who forged out of the east and made an agricultural empire in the valleys of the Mississippi and the Missouri have long before this found their way into book covers. As a matter of fact Miss Aldrich's last novel, "A Lantern in Her Hand," had the pioneer for its theme. This time, the granddaughters and grandsons of these covered wagon chauffeurs are limned.

The story of Laura Deal, granddaughter of Will and Abby Deal who jolted across the rutted plains to arrive in Nebraska the same day as the Reinmuellers and the Lutz's is anything but original. Laura thinks she wants a career as a writer but her heredity and her subdued inclinations finally lead her to love and marriage.

Grandma Deal is dead when the story opens. The oxen have given way to motor cars and the prairie "dugout" homes of 60 years before have become gleaming white Dutch Colonials. Oscar Lutz, old "mind-as-how" to the third generation is the surviving link with that little group which settled the original town.

Democratic Women Attack Bi-Centennial Pamphlet; Bulkley, White Talk.

A protest against alleged propaganda issued by the George Washington Bi-Centennial committee was adopted by the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio in a first annual meeting Saturday at the Deshler-Wallick hotel in Columbus.

Four Marion women were in attendance and heard the reading of the protest, the text of which will be sent to non-partisan women's organizations in the state and nation. Mrs. E. H. Senator Robert Bulkley and Governor White were among the speakers, both attending the luncheon at which 300 women were present. 400 ATTEND U. B. RALLY

Churches of District Hear Bishop Urge Personal Evangelism.

Bishop A. R. Clippinger of Dayton expressed himself as strongly favoring personal evangelism rather than mass evangelism, in his afternoon address at the district United Brethren rally here yesterday.

Bishop Clippinger spoke three times yesterday, twice at the local church and in the afternoon at the Chautauqua pavilion. Last night's meeting was scheduled for the pavilion, but cold weather made it impossible and the meeting was held at the church. A fellowship supper was served at the community house.

"The Holy Spirit" was the sermon subject for the morning services. In the afternoon the bishop spoke on "Evangelism" and at night on the subject of "The Transforming Power."

Nearly 400 were present for the rally, coming from the 10 charges making up the district. In the afternoon a chorus of 120 voices sang at the pavilion, the Galion and Marion choirs in robes, adding to the impressiveness of the service.

Bishop Clippinger explained, after making his statement regarding personal evangelism, that he drew his belief from the Bible, Jesus, when He chose His 12 disciples, went from man to man, talking with him, winning him to the cause of Christianity.

Bishop Clippinger pointed out that this is still the most effective evangelism today, coming as it does from heart-to-heart talks and not from "following the leader" in mass evangelism.

Last night the love of God furnished the bishop his theme. From actual experience he drew word pictures of men he had seen at the City Mission in Chicago, who went into the mission as fallen, worthless bits of humanity, and after they had found God and His love, had been transformed into useful citizens.

This morning Bishop Clippinger addressed a meeting of the Galion Ministerial association. He was accompanied by Rev. Carl V. Roop, pastor of the local church who also arranged the details of yesterday's meeting.

ENGLAND NOT TO ACT ON ARBITER

MacDonald Says India Must Settle Own Religious Dispute.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 28—India's Hindus and Moslems will have to settle their own communal problems, for the government of Great Britain is not going to act as arbiter, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald told members of the round table conference minorities committee today.

"I have been the scapegoat too often in my life," he said. "And while I am willing to do it again if necessary, I think that in this respect you should be your own scapegoats and take the responsibility for solution of this very difficult problem."

At his suggestion the committee adjourned until Thursday and in the meantime there will be unofficial negotiations between Mahatma Gandhi and the Agha Kahn, representing the two factions, beginning tonight when Mr. Gandhi's period of silence ends.

Pennsylvania Exacts Penalty; Two Pals Serving Life Terms.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 28—William C. Snipes, 23, formerly of Lancaster, S. C., was executed in Rockview penitentiary today for the murder of Edward Gamils, 44, proprietor of an inn, at Trevose, near Philadelphia.

The slaying occurred February 14 as Gamils and his wife Cecelia, prepared to close their inn for the night. The victim was counting the day's receipts when Snipes entered and demanded the money. Gifford Blames Depression on Money Hoarding

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—The public, by failure to spend its money, is blamed by Walter S. Gifford for much of the unemployment distress.

Consumer buying, the man entrusted by President Hoover with caring for the suffering of the jobless believes, must precede solution of the problem.

"If the public buys neither work nor goods, it is the public that is indirectly discharging men," he said last night in a radio address over both national networks.

He enumerated a four-point program or coping with unemployment distress. It concluded:

1. Appointment of a statewide committee of leading citizens by governor.
2. Organization of an emergency committee in needy communities.
3. Determination by this committee of the probable unemployment load and the development of ways to meet it by providing employment or relief.
4. Reports to the state committees on plans of the local groups.

He said 6,000,000 was the estimate "most generally mentioned" for the number of unemployed.

Fortune Gone, He Builds New One After 60

By International News Service

CHICAGO—A millionaire, then made penniless by the World war, an emigrant to America at 60, a table waiter to gain an education, and finally at the top of his profession, is the story of the late Dr. Hendrich Steinkuler, well known chiropodist, who died here recently.

Steinkuler left money for the erection of a monument with a Damon and Pythias design to commemorate his loyalty to his friend for 40 years, Fritz Neumann. The rest of his estate will go to establish a scholarship in the Illinois College of Chiropody.

The story of Steinkuler's life reads like a novel. He was a business man in Germany, very wealthy, when the war broke out. It left him poor.

He was too old to start anew in his homeland, he had said, so he migrated to America. He decided to be a chiropodist.

He still had to secure his high school and college degrees before he could take up the necessary technical training. He worked as a waiter and at odd jobs to finish his academic course.

He entered the Illinois College of Chiropody and when he graduated, he had made such a record that he was asked to join the faculty. He prospered and was an authority in his profession when he died.

In 1926 he and Neumann agreed that whichever survived would inherit the other's estate.

By International News Service

URBANA, O., Sept. 28—Hearing of disbarment proceedings against Prosecuting Attorney William Marvin Vance of Champaign county were to be held here today before Common Pleas Judge Frank Clevenger of Wilmington, appointed to the case by Chief Justice Carrington T. Marshall.

The disbarment proceedings were brought against Vance by the Champaign County Bar association, which charged the prosecuting attorney with misconduct in office and unprofessional conduct as a lawyer.

Among the specifications listed against Vance was one that while representing Grace Andrews in an attempt to get a settlement from Earl M. Andrews of Tiffin, her former husband, he threatened Andrews with prosecution for perjury and was instrumental in procuring an unlawful indictment against Andrews.

He was 18 hours behind his schedule for the journey of more than 9,000 miles and was showing the effects of four days of continuous flying since leaving Wyndham last Thursday.

DROP GOLD STANDARD IN TWO COUNTRIES

Norway and Sweden Follow Great Britain's Action To Conserve Supply.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Sept. 28—Sweden and Norway today followed Great Britain by seven days in suspending the gold standard and prohibiting the exportation of gold. The Danish cabinet is considering the same action.

Dispatches from Stockholm and Oslo said the two governments had decided temporarily to abandon payments in gold because of the affiliation of the krona and the krone with the pound sterling and the close connection of their finances with those of Great Britain.

The Swedish state council decided to drop the gold standard until Nov. 30, unless conditions should change before that date and to increase the national bank discount rate from six per cent. to eight per cent. The exportation of gold was prohibited except by the Riksbank, or by foreign national banks.

Minister of Finance Felix Hamrin said Sweden would restore the gold standard as soon as financial affairs permitted and that the suspension should not be regarded as a sign of weakness in the treasury. The people must buy more Swedish goods in order to improve the balance of trade, he said.

The commissioners of the Riksbank said there had been heavy demands on Sweden for gold after Great Britain's action and that foreign currency and the Riksbank's gold reserve had been reduced last week by 100,00,000 krona ($25,000,000) while hope of obtaining foreign credit sufficient to assume the supply of foreign currency had not been fulfilled.

Norway's withdrawal from the gold standard and placing of an embargo on gold exports were decreed for an indefinite period by the cabinet.

USES GOVERNOR'S NAME IN SWINDLE

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28—William L. Justus, 42, pleaded guilty in police court today to a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses from John C. Skidmore of Anderson, Ind., and was held to the county grand jury under $2,000 bond.

Skidmore told police Justus represented himself as a nephew of Governor White and obtained $650 from him to invest in state treasury certificates and an additional $420 to be used to purchase 65,000 bushels of corn on the Chicago market by the governor.

Police said Skidmore discovered his loss when he asked the state treasury about the certificates. There is no Ohio treasury certificate. Skidmore also discovered Justus was no relation of the governor, he said.

Defense Attorney William E. Minshall said he would take the case to the court of appeals.

MAKING IT TOUGH FOR PUPILS

Pupils of these twin professors of mathematics at the University of Kansas, at Lawrence, will certainly need to know their algebra, geometry and "unknown quantities" if they are not to become entangled in a mesh of wrong answers. The twins are Albert (left) and Thomas Palmerlee. They look so much alike that pupils of one are constantly asking the other how to work some mathematical problem.

Winter Soon To Close Hoover's Mountain Camp

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28—President Hoover returned to the White House shortly after 9 a. m. today after a week-end spent in his Virginia mountain camp. Jack Frost and the President had an informal meeting today on a country road.

Before most Americans more than suspect that winter is around the corner, it has made heavy clothing comfortable at the mountain-secluded presidential lodge. Today, the sun had barely peeped above the mountain tops and had done nothing to dispel the penetrating chill when the chief executive's cavalcade wound down the mountain road toward the White House.

He turned toward the capital with a fresh knowledge of problems which confront his administration. Yesterday Hanford MacNider, American minister to Canada, joined the presidential guests. He was flown from Bolling field to the camp in an army airplane.

The Rapidan will receive President Hoover but few times between now and spring. Water pipes laid near the earth's surface freeze quickly in the mountain temperatures and nights become less comfortable in the tent-covered lodges built for guests. Mid-autumn in the past has found the camp closed for the winter, with the marine guard providing the only activity.

WOMEN'S ATHLETIC CLASSES FORMED

J. L. Meredith Will Have Charge of New Activity at Y. M. C. A.

Formation of a women's athletic class at the Y. M. C. A. for gymnastic and body-building exercises, with meetings three times a week was announced today by J. L. Meredith, former physical director, who will be in charge of the work. The class is open to all Marion women.

There will be two divisions of the class, one for business and single women and the other for married women. The business women's class will meet each Wednesday night and the married women's section on Monday and Thursday afternoons.

The first meeting of the class is scheduled for Thursday at 2 p. m. for the married women's section. The first meeting of the business women's class will be Oct. 7 at 7:30 p. m. The activity of the class will continue until May 1.

Miss Rhea King will continue in charge of the swimming class each Wednesday night following the business women's class and also the girls' gymnasium and swimming class each Thursday at 4 p. m.

The new class is sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. to continue the work of a similar class held last year. The scope of this year's class will be much broader, however, officials announced.

ACCUSES OFFICIAL OF TAKING BRIBE

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 28—A charge that Prosecutor Ray L. Thomas of Mahoning county had accepted a bribe from Attorney David Shermer was made today by Special Prosecutor James Kennedy in making the state's opening statement in the joint trial of Shermer and Thomas on charges of bribery and of an officer receiving compensation.

Kennedy said that Thomas in 1928 "compelled" the county commissioners and Judge J. H. C. Lyon to appoint Shermer to collect delinquent taxes under a contract by which Shermer was to be paid on a percentage basis. Shermer ultimately was paid $42,000 for his work.

"We don't know what became of $15,000 or $20,000 of this money received by Shermer," Kennedy said. "But bank records shows that in 1929 Thomas deposited $28,167."

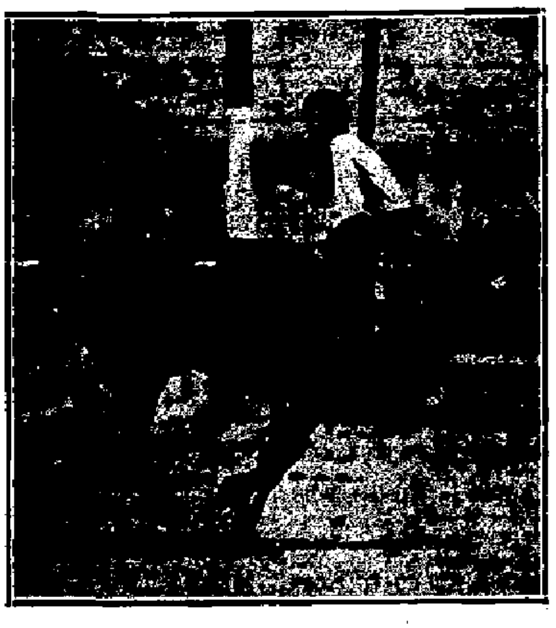
FUN IF YOU LIKE IT



Steer riding in any form is considered a dangerous pastime, but "Chuck" Davis, one of the troupe of 35 entertainers with the King Bros. rodeo which will entertain night fair visitors this week, adds to the thrill of the ride by mounting his animals backwards and locking his feet under their chins. The above photograph is a sample of Davis' favorite trick, riding one of the 65 head of livestock brought here by the rodeo.

Rodeo performances will begin Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights in front of the grandstand at 8, and will be the principal feature of the night fair program.

Unpoliced American Theater in Paris Run by Jamaica Youth

NEW YORK—An unfettered and unpoliced American theater is scheduled to open in Paris this coming fall for the benefit of homesick American exiles and French people who believe "it is smart to speak English."

The theater will be much like the New York Theater Guild and will always remain experimental in nature, according to Harrison Gladstone, a Jamaica, Long Island youth who is to guide the destinies of the new venture. And no mere dream is this theater for it is already built and Gladstone is at present in this country hiring two actors and two actresses.

"We intend to produce plays of all kinds and descriptions," he said, and there will be only two requirements; that the play is artistic and that it is worth while. We will not cater to the whims of masses, and propaganda plays, so called, will be taboo. However, if a sex play is worth while and artistic we will present it and there will be no Manhattan cops to raid us."

Gladstone is being backed by Madame Helena Rubenstein, beauty specialist, and her husband, Edward Titus, a Paris publisher. The theater is located at 216 Boulevard Raspail in the heart of the Montparnasse quarter. It is capable of seating 300 and prices will range from 20 to 60 francs, about 80 cents to $2.40. Some of the space in the theater building contains large studio apartments. Both Gladstone and his colleagues expect the theater to be a very paying proposition despite the depression.

There are a good many reasons why an American theater should be profitable in Paris, according to Gladstone. In the first place there is a colony of many thousands of Americans living permanently there. Most of them are wealthy and of the theater-going class. Besides this, Paris being a highly metropolitan city, thousands of travelers pass through it all the time. The theater regardless of its American nationality will appeal to peoples of all nations and tongues,he says.

ITALY TO INSTALL LONG SEA CABLE

Under-Ocean Telephone Line Ranked as Longest in World.

By United Press

ROME — What is believed to be the longest under-ocean telephone cable in the world will link Italy with Sardinia early next year, it was announced recently.

The cable, weighing nearly four pounds to the meter, will sink into Tyrrhenian sea at Fiumicino and emerge at Terranova, 156 miles away, a small coast village on Sardinia Island.

The manufacture of the special cable, which is of the same type as employed between Key West, Fla., and Havana, has been practically completed and it soon will be laid.

This operation presents immense difficulties because in many spots the depth of the Tyrrhenian sea is over 3,500 feet. From Terranova telephonic communication will be by overhead to Sassari, where connections can be made with the entire island. The Fascist Government is anxious to place the line in operation because of the growing importance of Sardinia as a mining and agricultural unit

Already several rooms have been outfitted completely and the following groups have purchased one bed each: American Legion, Legion auxiliary, Buckeye Aerie No. 337, Central Labor Union, Marion Lodge No. 864 B'Nai B'Rith, Marion Chapter Disabled American Veterans of the World war, Rotary club and Elks club. The Kiwanis club has contributed 60 sheets.

Community protection by rendering service to those in need and helping men to continue to be self-respecting is the motive prompting the project. Individualized attention should be given to the homeless man with a special problem, Captain Hunter believes. "Transient men should be assisted only through recognized agencies and the refusal to give relief in a systematic fashion or the postponement of relief giving, means complete lack of community protection," he says. Cooperation with police, public officials and welfare groups will do much in eliminating "pan-handling" and begging in the city, is his belief.

Build Fumigator

Men seeking lodging at the dormitory will be required to place all their clothing in a fumigator which is now under construction and in turn are provided with a night shirt, a pair of slippers, bath towel and a bar of soap. No clothing belonging to the transient will be allowed in the dormitory, assuring cleanliness and sanitation in the place at all times. In this way a better type of transient men, worthy of a "lift" can be reached and the professional "bum" will be eliminated, Captain Hunter points out.

The plan, Captain Hunter states, is in harmony with those of President Hoover's organization on unemployed relief and will care for the men who will be forced to seek shelter after "getting by" during the summer by sleeping in the parks or empty houses.

Aimee Doing Great Work with Church Will Says; Why Not Leave Her Alone?

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL all I know is just what I read in the papers. With Aimee marrying out here a couple of weeks ago, they just dident leave much else to be said. They hadent any more than finished saying "I Do" till the breach of promise suits commenced pouring in. Poor Ma Kennedy she hadent got the bridal veil off till old Wives commenced showing up all over the country. It looked like she had married a professional marrier.

Well her and old "Whataman" was just kinder getting their license straightened out when Aimee grabs a Baritone, one of those old Choir loves. Well then everybody that had ever slept through Church started in saying he had deceived em in some part of the country or the other. One was a Nurse and she claimed that she was an old flame of his when she wasent nursing.

Why dont they let the Woman alone? She does a lot of good with her Church. She is what every Preacher in America wants to and is trying to be, and thats a good showman. She has got some kind of a musical show on at her church now, based on the Bible, and this old Boy she married is Pharaoh, and they got the stage or pulpit all litered up with Bull rushes, and Girls. But its good clean wholesome entertainment, if you dont get any religion out of it, it keeps you out of some other devilment.

Next to Aimee the biggest headliner lately has been this little fellow Gandi. He just blew into London with nothing on but a Diaper and he has had the whole British Empire bringing sticks out of the water for him. They look on him over in India as almost a second God, and I guess he does come nearer living and acting like our Saviour than any one else ever did. He is different from Aimee, she believes in the Lord but she believes in some luxuries along with it. She don't deny herself anything. While this Gandi he actually lives like our Saviour. He couldent figure out England being so hard up, and yet spending so much money.

You know there hasent been a case like that little fellow in our lifetime. If he is not sincere then he is the Worlds best Actor, and say Old England as big as he is is she paying some attention to him. Everybody thinks he is a great man but Jimmy Walker and Jimmy had never heard of him. Gandi is not what you would call a Tammany man. Jimmy got home from his investigation cure, and those dumb Republicans in New York are no nearer getting anything on him than they ever were. They always talk in generalities and not in any specific case where they can prove something.

World Series will be on pretty soon and thats when depression will end for about sixty thousand every day. Philadelphia plays St. Louis as usual. St. Louis dident win for years then they accidentally won one year, and saw what a cinch it was, they have practically kept it up since then. Most teams when they found out they had to play the Athletics in the World Series dident try to win. But St. Louis is a glutton for punishment, they are getting ready for another sock in the jaw. I want to make that if I can. I havent seen one of the World Series games in three or four years. I used to have some great friends playing ball in the good old days, Speaker, Walter Johnston, Cobb, Duffy Lewis, Harry Hoper, and a host of others.

I never have seen one of these night games, I just can imagine how they can get it light enough to see how to play ball but they say its great, and is drawing a lot of people out here. Los Angeles and Hollywood are fighting it out for the Pennant. They call the Hollywood the "Shieks" out here, and Oscar Vitt another old friend and Ex Detroit Player is their Manager. Football is coming on fast that its not leaving much news for depression. The Four Horsemen of the great Notre Dame fame have been out here donating their time to the making of a great picture called the Spirit of Notre Dame, including all the famous Stars of past and present, and one afternoon they did me the great favor of coming up to my little ranch and playing around, riding horses just like a backfield can. They are fine Boys, and everyone of them are making good as Coaches.

That must be a great school. I sometimes wish I had gone there instead of stringing along with Brisbane and going to Oxford. Course I made the Cricket team and knocked a couple of hundred runs in one game one series. But after all Tea and Cricket dont do you much good when you got to get out and battle Republican made depression. It's all right as long as Democratic Prosperity is with us why an Oxford diploma will get you by, but when Steel hits a new low, and Radio quits splitting up four to one, why you got to have some real learning.

Going to Claremore this week end. We going to have big blowout. Did you know Claremore has Polo now? You bet your life she has. We got one of the best Military Schools in the west, and they have Government Horses, and a fine bunch of young boys there that can really ride. We will be giving Roswell, N. M., a tough go pretty soon. In a few years Polo will be as big a sport in schools as Football, and its a great thing for the Horse raisers, Ranchers, Feed raisers, everything. Well will see you at the World Series. So long.

Fair To Revive Old Methods of Transportation

By International News Service

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 28—All the magnificence of a presidential ride in a carriage, behind prancing horses from the presidential stables, will be paraded before Governor George White and thousands of others at the Wayne county fair here Oct. 2.

Riding in the presidential carriage, which formerly was used by President William McKinley, will be General Jacob Coxey of Massillon, leader of the first unemployment parade staged by "Coxey's Army."

The mode of travel grandfather and grandmother used will be put on display during the fair in a pageant depicting the development of vehicular transportation from the time the first settlers moved into Northern Ohio more than 125 years ago.

Although outstanding, the display of McKinley's carriage will be only a small part of the pageant. General Coxey will wear a costume appropriate for the time the pageant is supposed to depict.

A wagon 115 years old has been located near Shreve. Ox-teams, prairie schooners, stage coaches, buckboards, old-time buggies and surries, a one-horse hearse, pioneer rural route mail wagons—these are a few of the equipages which have been found in dust-covered storage places.

Impersonations of actors in different periods of the county's history, clothing in keeping with the times the vehicles were used, farm implements used many decades ago, together with various relics these conveyances will carry, will all have a place in the pageant.

RECEIVES PATENT ON FLUE DEVICE

J. D. Cantwell of Marion Invents Furnace Equipment.

J. D. Cantwell of 147 McWilliams court, has received papers from Washington, D. C., granting him a patent on a device to clean chimney flues and to promote draft in a chimney.

Among the benefits claimed for the device, which fits into the chimney is the elimination of smoke when the furnace door is opened for firing. Cantwell says several manufacturers are interested in the device.

During the pendency of his patent, he has installed several of the devices in Marion, and their operation has proven satisfactory, he said.

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, Sept. 29

THE lunar trine aspect with the planet Neptune presages an important understanding or affiliation with a large corporation, a combine or secret body of prominence. An element of the subtle, intriguing or curious may complexion these contacts or new projects, but it would be wise to circumvent openings for fraud, duplicity or misrepresentation. Shun haste, quarrels and litigation.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of intrigue, conspiracy or secret agreements or contracts with close corporations, mergers or other combine or secret organization. While new projects may thrive through subtle methods yet there is danger of duplicity and fraud or misrepresentation. Likewise impetuous, rash, hasty and quarrelsome acts and decisions may lead to disaster or litigation. A child born on this day may be disposed to be quick, tempestuous, rash and headstrong, as well as prone to resort to crafty measures of attaining its ends. Trained in honor and probity it may succeed in diplomacy or conspiracy.

Fighter, 86, Tired y; Starts Hike Home

iber of surprised t and out-of-town y afternoon wit- ge spectacle of a h camping equip- west on Center s strongly resem- picture version of or "Fighting Bill d, the leader and rro, or "Tipperary," 0-year-old animal, pa with Buffalo es, during the lat- ross the waters. s he is called, sur- e rough and ready days of the golden west, was captured by a tribe of Comanche Indians before he was two years old, raised by them until he was 12, when he managed to escape and live among his own people again, he says.

Civil War Scout

Raymond Earl Hatfield Gardner, his real name, born in Texas July 4 1845, saw action in numerous Indian encounters, served as a scout in the Civil War, was a ranger and forester in the west and has prospected for gold in Californal, Mexico and Alaska, he says.

Gardner's home is in Tombstone, Ariz., and he lived there for many years until his desire to see the eastern part of the United States overcame the natural tendency of an octegenarian to stay by the home fires. So a year and a half ago he set out for New York City, accompanied only by Tipperary, his walking companion when the old westerner thinks he should rest from the burden of carrying him. He wears a long reddish beard, scout hat, knee breeches and hiking coat and shoes.

After getting his fill of present day New York and other parts of the east, he started out again on the long trek homeward.

He arrived in Marion Saturday afternoon from Iberia where he spent the night. Friday he walked or rode through Galion "in the rain," as he put it.

Seeks Medical Aid

Feeling the pangs of fatigue, the old scout intends to stay at the Marion fairgrounds for a few days before setting out for Marysville, Springfield and Dayton. Upon arrival in Dayton, he intends to apply at the Dayton Soldiers' home for treatment before continuing the long march to Tombstone.

It is a fairly safe wager that Arizona Bill will be content to settle down when he is once more home again and live a quiet and easy life, earned through 86 years of action and events of a busy life!

LOCAL YOUTH NAMED SCHOOL ALTERNATE

George H. Wilhelm in Line for Consideration in Navy Appointments.

George Harrison Wilhelm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wilhelm of 919 Mt. Vernon avenue, has been appointed second alternate to Annapolis by Congressman Grant E. Mouser, Jr.

Wilhelm was an honor student in Harding High school, from which he was graduated in 1931 with an average grade of more than 90 for the four years.

He will take an examination next February with others appointed as principals and alternates. His appointment completes all Annapolis appointments for the present, the congressman said.

When next appointments are available from this district to West Point, the congressman will ask the United States civil service commission to conduct a competitive examination to determine who shall be eligible for appointment. Sixteen applicants are now seeking appointment.

UNIFORM TRAFFIC RULES EXPECTED

Eighteen States Now Have Same Governing Laws

All states are eventually coming to uniform traffic regulations, according to Mrs. D. V. Gallagher, secretary of the Marion Auto club.

Conversation with tourists from other states, and statistics from the national automobile association, show that 18 states have uniform traffic rules. Ohio has not adopted uniform rules.

With cross-country driving and touring becoming a common business and pleasure practice, the need for uniform rules are becoming more noticeable, Mrs. Gallagher pointed out. A motorist can not possibly have complete knowledge of the rules of different states, she pointed out.

Uniform rules adopted by the 18 states are patterned after act four of the uniform vehicle code drafted by the national conference on street and highway safety, of which the American Automobile association is a sponsor.

FOUR MARX BROTHERS COMING TO PALACE

At last Marion will laugh again. After the tragedies of "Bad Girl," "An American Tragedy," gruesome murder pictures, gangsters and ladies of questionable paste, the four Marx brothers have come to town.

GROUCHO MARX

"Monkey Business," their latest and many reviewers have said, their best comedy, opens at the Palace Tuesday for a five-day run.

Thelma Todd, whose name has been changed to Allison Lloyd for future productions, is their leading lady. Leading lady to Groucho, Harpo, Chico and Zeppo—four filmaniacs.

Harpo, whose playing of the instrument from which he took his stage and screen name is beautiful and would make him a concert artist, never took a lesson in his life. He does everything wrong, even to the extent of tuning the instrument so that no other person on earth can play it. His harp is insured for $10,000.

This time the brothers are in a hilarious bit of nonsense with a ship as their scene of action.

FEDERAL-AID ROADS 2,553 MILES LONG

Ohio has 2,553 miles of federal-aid highways, 252 additional miles are now under construction, and plans have been approved for building 119 more miles, according to a survey conducted by the American Automobile association, of which the local auto club is a member.

On June 30 this year there was $89,638,888 in federal funds available for federal-aid roads.

Ultimately, association officers point out, when the system of state and federal highways now being built is completed, practically every city and town of 5,000 or more inhabitants will be connected. Under this plan, 90 per cent of the nation's population will live within 10 miles of a federal-aid road, and practically all the remaining 10 per cent will be that close to a state road.

GEORGE ARLISS PLAYS HISTORIC PICTURE AT OHIO

George Arliss presents a perfect picture in "Alexander Hamilton" at the Ohio through Wednesday. The picture is showing as a benefit for the Marion Concert association. The fine authenticity of the settings and costuming brings wonder that it is only a series of "sets" in Hollywood and not the Philadelphia of Hamilton's time.

The affair between Hamilton and June Collyer, in the role of Mrs. Reynolds, is delicately handled, as only Arliss could do it. It gives quite a thrill of patriotism to hear Washington give his farewell to his troops and there was a patter of applause last night when Hamilton denounced the plotters against his character, defied his accusers and told the true story of the Reynolds affairs to the public.

Doris Kenyon as his wife, is more beautiful than before she left the screen to become Mrs. Milton Sills, and Miss Collyer is a charming Mrs. Reynolds. The entire cast is "picture-proof." "Alexander Hamilton" is as great if not greater than Arliss' "Disraeli," and is recommended for the entire family.

Hamilton as first secretary of the treasury is anxious that the "Assumption Bill," which he has fathered, goes through to establish the credit of the United States at home and abroad. Senator Roberts, played by Dudley Digges, objects to the bill and plots Hamilton's ruin, finally resorting to a woman to realize his aim. The unfolding of the plot and Hamilton's refusal to barter away his country to save his own name, makes stirring motion picture entertainment.

A comedy, newsreel, "Believe It or Not" short and an organlogue complete the bill. H. H.

There, lying quite close together, Patterson found two fox squirrels. They had been in the line of fire, and both were killed.

BUTTERFAT MARKET MORE ENCOURAGING

Slight Improvement in Last Month Reported from Ohio Inquiry.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 28—The butterfat market has improved slightly during the last month, largely as a result of declining production, and reports show that pasture conditions have not been good in many heavy producing areas, according to C. J. West, research director of the Ohio Farm Bureau.

The director said "butterfat prices are around 30 cents a pound, Chicago 92 score basis, which compares with a price of 38 cents to 39 cents a year ago. Milk prices are slightly irregular with somewhat firmer conditions in evidence. The bulk cream market is weak.

"Milk supplies are less than average this summer because of pasture conditions. The extremely hot weather over the country during the month of September has extended the fly season to a later date than usual, and this has caused a decline in production.

"Increasing amounts of surplus cream have appeared on eastern markets and some is said to have moved into storage. The total quantities in cold storage on Sept. 1 amounted to an equivalent of 184,300 cans of 40 per cent cream. As the summer season has ended, dealers have become anxious to move cream and this has changed the situation from a seller to a buyer market."

"Prices for dairy cows are very important figures because of their indications of the number of heifer calves to be retained for the dairy herd. When cow prices are very low there is a tendency for dairy farmers to sell heifer calves as veal rather than retain them for dairy cows. The United States average for dairy cows is reported by the government at $48 per head, as compared with $66 a year ago. This is $1 under the average which prevailed for five years before the war.

"Farm produced feed is so plentiful in Ohio and in most of the other dairy states that purchases of feed may not be heavy, with the result that many dairy herds will not be fed ration which is most effective for production. The result may be somewhat lowered production of milk and butterfat this winter.

"Based on the possibilities for a moderate decrease in production as compared with last year, indications are for fairly favorable prices this winter."

Bomb throwers, one night recently, made a target of the Montreal police headquarters. Can it be that Canadians are emulating the American scorn of the law?

The former Aimee Semple McPherson announces that she has arranged for the leasing of a Boston auditorium with a seating capacity of 20,000 and will let loose there with her four-square doctrine. Brown bread, baked beans and the sacred codfish! Won't that stir up the elite of The Hub?

The soviet Russian trade union council has made public a new piece work wage scale for metal and coal workers, under which workers of ability may increase their wages as much as 800 per cent. Another stride away from the communistic system.

The federal bureau of the census announces that there are now 12,000,000 voters more than in 1920, the figures of the date of April 1 of last year being 72,943,824 as against 60,886,520 ten years earlier. Who knows? The increase in the number of potential voters may be sufficient to overcome the apathy shown in elections as a result of the primary system.

Senator Reed, of Pennsylvania, holds that if the United States doesn't follow the lead of Great Britain by "facing the music" and passing a sales tax, the federal treasury will show a deficit for the fiscal year of more than $1,500,000,000. If this country does "face the music," it is hoped that we will take it as philosophically as the people of Britain.

Gene Tunney, making his first essay as a magazine writer, tells how the Russian bolsheviki are melting the bells of the cathedrals and churches over there to make ammunition for their army. Let's see! Aren't these the gentle doves Senator Borah would have us recognize?

A toy balloon, released with her card attached by a young lady in Greensburg, Pennsylvania, was picked up by a sergeant at Schofield barracks, Hawaii, who found the balloon unbroken, and that brings up a question—did the balloon sail westward or take an eastern course and pass well around the earth?

An Indianapolis woman has been convicted of running "a matrimonial agency for herself." Huh! Doesn't just about every woman run a matrimonial agency for herself?

This year's crop of grapes is reported to contain a far-greater sugar content than ordinarily, which increases the kick of the wine made from them. Even nature seems to be arrayed against the champions of Volsteadism!

New York City has arranged for a short-term loan of $57,000,000 at 1½ and 1½ per cent. Change the size of the loan and the rate of interest and that is what, sad to say, many other American cities are doing or trying to do—to their future sorrow.

Cutting Congressional Salaries.

Representative Will R. Wood, of Indiana, and Representative Allen T. Treadway, of Massachusetts, have startled their fellow-congressmen and the public at large by proposing congressional pay cuts as part of the federal economy program. The people can be expected to await future developments with a skeptical grin. The probability of congressmen cutting their own salaries seems hopelessly remote, at the first glance.

Congress hung back a long time before raising its members' salaries from $7,500 to $10,000 a year. It looked like a big boost, even to the legislators who needed the money most. By certain processes of arguments and reason, however, a majority finally convinced itself that $10,000 a year was about right, and voted accordingly. The best-paid legislative body on earth thus became a legislative body paid better than any other one ever can expect to be paid.

A $10,000-a-year man in the United States is far from common. Much is expected of him, usually. He lays an easy claim to the title of "executive." He is hard to duplicate.

In congress, there are some men who surpass the $10,000-a-year standard, many who equal it, and many who make vain pretensions of equaling it. There are, in other words, the leaders, the followers, the hangers-on. All are paid alike.

A congressional salary cut of, say twenty per cent., would have no effect on the many wealthy men in congress, would inflict no undue penalty on capable legislators of moderate circumstances, and would still leave a great many fumbling congressmen richly rewarded. It is recommended as a means of showing the public that congress takes federal economy seriously. A reduction of $2,000 in the congressional salaries would save the nation [illegible] a year.

The Rough and Tumble Primary.

Ohio's legislators didn't have enough vitality to loosen the throttling hold of the rough-and-tumble primary on government when they tried last season. For those who continue weak from the struggle, and for those who didn't fight, an Atlantic Monthy article by Oliver McKee is recommended.

One quotation, though insufficient to express the power of Mr. McKee's condemnation of the primary, is quoted:

"The bill of indictment against the primary contains many counts. It has increased the cost of candidacy; it has tended to promote the demagogue type of office-seeker, has swelled the tribe of politicians living off the public purse, has undermined party responsibility; and at a time when self-government has been encompassed about as never before with difficulties, because of the increasing complexities of our economic and social structure, it has injected into the body politic a new form of mass action which has added materially to the embarrassments already existing. * * *"

To Mr. McKee's list may be added another count: the primary has not done the things it was intended to do. It has not destroyed the power of the boss, the organizer or the money bag. It has not given the common man a chance to hold office. It has, on the other hand, produced campaigns in which aspirants for office spent as high as $785,000, and in which a man of moderate means has not the slightest chance. It has made candidates responsible to millionaire backers and blocs, instead of to a political party whose survival depended on sound principles and good candidates to administer them. It has made respectable men reluctant to go into competition with large fields of candidates where the freak's chance of winning was as good as that of the man of ability. It has fostered the power of organized minorities to the point where administrators and legislators are afraid to move without first consulting a hundred oracles to determine how severely they may be punished for offending this or that tight little group. It has made of the statesman a museum piece, and of the public official a jack-in-the-box.

The representative form of government, founded on the dual party system, can not be congenial with the primary. One only will survive. Representative government is on the bottom of the heap, but it's still fighting—and getting more encouragement from the thoughtful people after every tortured twist and turn.

Germany having 4,000,000 unemployed, her dole system is costing her $2,105,000 a day, or at the rate of $768,325,000 a year. We may not realize it, but the United States would be lucky to get off under present conditions, with five times that penalty a year.

It is the opinion of Isabel Paterson that "minding one's own business is not only impossible, but undesirable," for the reason that "it would result in complete apathy and mental decay." This may be said for Isabel: she is not suffering on that test from either apathy or mental decay.

According to a Paris cable, a member of the French institute has perfected a device to keep a telegraphic or wireless message secret by sending it simultaneously with a more powerful message which has no connection with the secret message, the device taking the lighter message and not the heavier. Can it be applied to telephone messages, we wonder?

Too Much Zeal.

Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, richly deserves the rebukes given him by the new commander of the American legion, prominent anti-prohibitionists, and the peppery Floyd Gibbons for his intemperate comment on the recent American legion convention in Detroit.

Mr. Wilson, when informed of the legion's vote adopting a resolution to submit the question of modifying the Volstead act to the states, resorted to ungenerous statements in an attempt to discount the force of the veterans' action.

In boxing, such tactics would deserve a heavy penalty. In football, which Mr. Gibbons uses as a comparison, Secretary Wilson would incur a heavy penalty for slugging. In business, he would be branded as an unscrupulous competitor. In ordinary conversation, such remarks would discredit him as being a boor. In a social issue, such as prohibition, they mark him as an opponent who is willing to sling mud if convinced that it will help him win his point.

Secretary Wilson has allowed zeal to get him into a nasty predicament. He depends on favorable public opinion for the success of his work, and he has snubbed it publicly by a breach of good taste.

Officials of the United Railways of Baltimore are puzzled to determine why women smoke when riding upon the tops of its buses, but never smoke when riding in its trolley cars, although there are seats for smokers in each open car. The probable explanation is that no nifitly-dressed woman has as yet set an example.

Speaking before a gathering of 2,000 women from all parts of the United States and several foreign countries, a woman orator held men responsible for women's concern about clothing. Stuff and nonsense! Every woman knows, and if she's honest about it she will confess it, that women dress to make each other envious.

The navy department is puzzled to decide whether the defective stern posts found in the five 10,000-ton treaty cruisers, Chester, Louisville, Chicago, Northampton and Augusta, are due to faulty castings or faulty design. The fact that they were constructed in five different shipyards would indicate faulty design, but the further fact that the Chester has shown no evidence of weakness since a new stern post was installed in her and the other three cruisers tested—the Salt Lake City, Pensacola and Houston—have never shown any weakness at any time, would indicate a case of faulty castings rather than faulty design. So there's the puzzle. Can you beat it?

TAKING THE BULL BY THE HORNS.

Editorial Opinion.

THE WHIP FOR GANGSTERS.

Lewis L. Fawcett, supreme court justice in New York City, has joined the ranks of those who believe in corporal punishment for brutal crime. "We should have the whipping post and the lash vigorously applied to all gangsters and racketeers," said the judge, speaking directly from the bench the other day. "If we had, they would not come back for a second dose. The records of England, Delaware and Maryland show a decided lack of second offenders."

"Brutalizing and un-Christian!" the sentimentalists and bandit petters will scream. Is it?

In the October number of Scribner's magazine, one Jack Callahan, who says he is an ex-convict of varied experience in prisons, talks in a most interesting way about various aspects of penology, old and new, discussing coddling and riots, and their causes, and he says, among other things,

"I had no spring bed or comfortable mattress to rest on ten or twenty years back. I slept on a "shakedown" on the floor with a hundred other lawbreakers, all of whom were chained together by the ankles. Did we riot? No; we never rioted. We were too tired to riot—they worked hard all day. But even if we had been disposed to stage a little rebellion, there was that strap hanging in the warden's office to give us pause. Only the man who has had the strap can testify to its power as a reterrent. I have had several applications of it, so I ought to know. There never was a riot in a prison where the warden swung the strap. * * * The strap did not degrade me. It had the opposite effect. It provoked meditation, and strangled the ambition to become known as the "hard guy of the big house." * * * I never robbed a bank in Delaware because the whipping-post always scared me. * * * Restore the strap. Convicts fear the strap. It is not degrading. Babying a full-grown man is far more degrading than strapping him."

Mr. Callahan adds the prophecy that there never will be riots in southern prisons because they use straps in them, and work the convicts hard; and "tired convicts never riot."

These remarks certainly deserve some attention. They come from a person who is, in a manner of speaking, an expert on the subject he discusses; and he ought to know a little more about what he talks of than the sobsquaders do.

Coming on the theory that the strap or the lash is un-Christian, we advance just one quotation to the contrary. It is this: "And when He had made a whip of small cords, He drove them all out of the temple." Subsequently He said to the racketeers He had flogged and routed: "It is written, My house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves."

That is what the thugs and racketeers are making today of this land that once was a land of liberty, piety and honesty, "a den of thieves." And the method Jesus of Nazareth employed 2,000 years ago to correct such a condition, certainly ought to be "Christian" enough to be used today.—Detroit Free Press.

"But surely you must have heard of those marvelous falls that pour into Lake Erie?" she explained.

"Oh," said the American. "I know what you mean now. But we don't call them Niagara Falls; we speak of them as Niffles."

Nature Usually Warns.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

We seldom look at a newspaper without reading of a case of apoplexy. Most of the sudden deaths are due to this condition.

Apoplexy, or "stroke," as it is commonly called, is due to a rupture of a tiny artery in the brain. This break in the blood vessel permits a hemorrhage into the brain substance. Unconsciousness follows.

In cases of recovery the patient is usually more or less paralyzed. The paralysis that occurs is usually opposite to the side of the brain where the hemorrhage took place.

The most common artery to rupture in apoplexy, is a branch of a large vessel which is found on the right side of the brain. The paralysis is then found in the left side of the body.

The hemorrhage usually takes place in an area of the brain where the motor nerve fibers are centered. The fibers coming from this portion of the brain control movements of the tongue, face, arms, hands and legs. Due to the pressue on the nerve cells caused by the hemorrhage, there is a loss of power of the parts of the body supplied by these particular nerves.

Apoplexy rarely, if ever, occurs in young adults. It is most commonly seen in persons beyond the age of fifty.

Such factors as high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries, heart disease, kidney disease and other constitutional disorders, are usually the real cause of the conditions which are favorable to hemorrhage.

The onset of the disease is sudden. But most persons have been warned in advance of the danger. They have known of the possibility of its occurrence.

Most cases follow immediately after severe exertion. This exertion may be in the form either of mental or of muscular exercise.

Many attacks of apoplexy occur after heavy meals. It is liable to follow any sudden effort or exercise after a meal which have not been given sufficient time to digest.

Emotional excitement, particularly anger, is a factor to be considered in the prevention of this sudden calamity. The quiet, unruffled person rarely succumbs to this catastrophe.

Care of the diet, hygiene, fresh air and sunshine, plus an adequate amount of rest, are vitally important for all individuals who present any signs of threatening apoplexy. It is certainly true in this disease that prevention is better than cure.

The Flight of the DO-X.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

The front pages of the newspapers of the world have recently been filled with the record of individual aviation victories, great stunt flights, transatlantic hops, round-the-world air journeys, and speed and endurance tests. But when the giant DO-X landed on the waters of New York harbor on August 27, experts felt encouraged to state that a definite advance had been made in the direction of commercial aviation.

Dornier, the inventor of the giant airplane, has always been very conservative in his hopes and prophecies. He never felt positive, even after the successful flights over Lake Constance two years ago, that the DO-X could affect the passage across the ocean to the United States. As symbolic of that wholesome doubt, he attached to the letters DO, an abbreviation for Dornier, the mysterious letter X, representing the unknown quantity.

It was a big experiment upon which he had embarked; and experimentation has been the spirit which has actuated his efforts. While neither he nor other aviation experts would venture so far as to declare that the flight of the DO-X gives the final affirmative answer to the problems of transoceanic commercial flying, or to affirm that this machine is the final form of the airplane required, few scientists doubt that Dornier's experiment has demonstrated that airplanes can be greatly increased in size without material impairment of their efficiency as commercial fliers and carriers of passengers and baggage.

Figures, impressive as they usually are, scarcely suffice to convey an adequate idea of the great size of the giant DO-X. It has a span of 157 feet, and a hull 131 feet long. Unloaded it weighs 61,000 pounds; fully loaded, it weighs almost twice as much, to be exact, 106,000 pounds. It can carry a payload of 10,000 pounds. It has a normal cruising speed of 118 miles an hour, and a high speed of 134 miles an hour. It broke a record on its last lap from Norfolk to New York, carrying seventy-one persons in a non-stop flight for a distance of more than 300 miles. The total distance traversed by the DO-X since it left Germany was almost 12,000 miles.

The big airplane, with its twelve powerful 600-horsepower water-cooled Curtiss Conqueror engines, consumed ten months in its great flight. The flight began from Friedrichshafen on November 4, 1930. A serious disaster occurred at Lisbon, when the left wing was destroyed by a mysterious fire. After weeks of delay, it set forth from Lisbon on January 31 of this year to the Canary islands, a flight of 715 miles in about seven hours. The longest hop was from the Cape Verde islands to Brazil, 1,400 miles.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Pork Market in Ohio.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

The want of markets was the greatest obstacle that pioneers of Ohio faced. The soil was far more fertile than it is now, and their acres, as soon as they had them cleared, produced abundantly. But for their surplus products it was hard to find buyers. They knew that there were buyers for all they had in Europe. And even in the coast cities fair prices could be secured, but there was no transportation.

The late Henry C. Taylor, of Columbus, told a story which he had from his father, of how a man with an unusually good business mind contrived to profit considerably by conditions which produced an unusual amount of pork. The year, 1825, brought a great deal of mast. That is a term including the nuts of all kinds of forest trees—acorns, beech nuts, hickory nuts, walnuts, pig nuts, etc. A man by the name of Reynolds noted the abundance of nuts and knew that the hogs owned by the settlers would fatten splendidly on them. He contracted with all the settlers whom he could interest in the proposition, for the delivery of their hogs at his place on Big Walnut creek in December. There he erected a slaughter and packing house and cured the meat as fast as they were delivered.

At the same time he constructed a decked flat-boat, which he loaded with the pork, and as soon as the rivers filled up in the spring, floated it down the creek, through the Scioto, the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers to New Orleans, where he made a good sale of his cargo, most of it being bought for shipment to Europe.

Thus Europe had an opportunity to taste fine mast-fattened pork from central Ohio as early as 1825. The local farmers received presumably a fair price for their hogs and a gentleman with some foresight probably laid the foundation for a fortune of that day.

New York Day by Day.

New York, Sept. 28 — Diary of a modern Pepys: Lay late and to the train to meet my mother-in-law returning from a summer in Ohio and, God helping me, I should like to be as spry at fifty as she at seventy-seven. Then to the Biltmore to breakfast with Carl Seitz, the Shanghai shipping man, an old friend whose hair has grown snow white, too.

All afternoon at my tasks and Lucinda Reichenbach, Harry's widow, and Nellie Webb came and brought Lucinda's griffon, weighing but four pounds. In the evening to see Donald Meek in John Golden's new play which I enjoyed and then to a party in the Messmore Kendall's apartment over the Capitol theater.

Among the gathering were James Montgomery Flagg, Arthur William Brown, Major Bowes, Margaret Illington, Elise Bartlett, Gilbert and Dodo White, from Paris, the guests of honor. So driving to Atlantic City in the brave moonshine and arriving in the pink of a glorious dawn.

The origin of the so-called "black out" skit, the risque climax of which is turning out all the stage lights, is said to have been in the burlesque halls. There has not been a successful revue without them in five years. To my notion the most hilarious was written by Eddie Welch, a Hollywood gag man. The scene is a hotel apartment. A husband off on a trip suddenly returns hoping to catch an army officer he suspects of paying attention to his wife. He hears a noise in a closet. Drawing his pistol he shouts: "Unless that man in a uniform comes out at once I'll fire." The door opens and out come, in single file, a bell boy, a door man, a street sweeper, elevator starter and so on, winding up with a mounted cop on his horse.

The sleeper came to, gulping down the oyster, rubbed his hand across the mouth, saw a red smear and in white faced terror moaned: "And the damn thing bit me going down."

Night Life of Old Paris.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

America has been hearing much of late of the death, or at least the serious illness, of Paris night life. Such news can only amuse those who have spent any time in Paris.

Paris night life is Paris, as much a part of her as the Louvre or the Seine. True enough, the high-priced cabarets in Montmartre—the luridly painted night clubs are suffering a dearth of cash customers. Most of these places are run only for tourists with money to burn—they have as many "props" as a magician's show—there is the Russian club where you are told in a whisper that impoverished grand dukes are waiters, that in the rear a second cousin of the late czar can be seen washing dishes. There are the "underworld" places with their apaches, who are paid to look tough, to leer at the visitors from Podunk or Luluzu. Fights are staged for the benefit of the Yankees in these places.

But this is not and never was the real night life of Paris—at least not to me. And it seems to the writer that the fine spirit, the genuine gaiety, the bubbling spirits that you find in many little cafes in various quarters of the city—notably in Montparnasse—are things that can never die.

Even publicity has not been able to kill the pleasant spirit that rules the atmosphere in these places. The walls are lined with paintings done by artist-customers and the clientele is drawn from the four corners of the earth. You may find yourself sitting between an Afghan and a Swede or between an Armenian and an Argentine.

You sit as long as you like—dawdle over your coffee or liqueur—the waiter will not bother you if you remain all evening. That is the essence of the charm that is Montparnasse—you may dance, you may drink, you may sit and write letters, whatever you do you won't be disturbed.

Paris minds its own business—you can come in overalls or tuxedo—nobody cares and nobody even gives you a second glance. On the other hand, the places in Montmartre are as American as Texas Guinan and as expensive as Broadway.

t you remember

d Peak in a tone
flat. "I remem-

e you don't mind"

He's just in town for the day—"

"Of course not," said Peak quietly. "Of course I don't mind."

He stood there for a time after she had driven away, his blue bathrobe fluttering grotesquely about his long legs. Then he shivered, and turned toward the house.

Sam met Freddy the next afternoon, just inside the main door of the Express building. When she first caught sight of him he was leaning against the marble wall near the elevators. The collar of his light spring overcoat was turned up at the back and the brim of his gray felt hat was pulled down over his eyes. He was reading a newspaper.

Sam drew a sharp little breath, being inevitably reminded of the first time she had met him for lunch. The hour was the same and so was the place. Freddy was the same. He was wearing the same clothes in the same way. He might have been reading the same paper. She found herself wondering whether there had been any interval at all. She also found that she was shaken and embarrassed. She wanted to run away.

Freddy, too, was embarrassed. She could tell that by the quick nervous way in which he straightened as she approached, and by the manner of his greeting. "Hello, there," he said with elaborate carelessness. "How are you? Let's eat, shall we?"

"Hello, Freddy." Sam laughed nervously. "I'm splendid, thanks, and I'm quite ready to eat."

He nodded and led the way out of the Express building, across the crowded street, and into the equally crowded little restaurant on the far corner. He said nothing and Sam said nothing until they were seated and their order given.

"Well." He grinned and for the first time they were looking into each other's eyes. "Something should be said, I suppose, about water under the well known bridge."

"I suppose so." Sam resisted a strong temptation to look away. "Quite a lot of it seems to have flowed, Freddy."

"How's your job?" he asked abruptly.

"My job?" Sam realized angrily that she was suddenly blushing. "I gave it up."

"Oh, I see." Whatever Freddy saw must have been unpleasant, for his familiar scowl appeared and remained. "So that's it, is it?"

"Yes." She stirred uneasily. "You see, Freddy, I don't have to work any more. Fourth suddenly made money."

"Fourth?" He stared, incredulous. "Your step-father?"

"Yes. I told you about his invention, didn't I?"

"I don't remember." Freddy was leaning back in his chair now, but he was watching her closely. "At any rate, let's hear about it."

Sam seized the opportunity. She found that for some reason she wanted to talk on and on about Fourth and his invention.

Their luncheon had arrived and they ate it as she talked. Freddy smoked one cigarette after the other, and interrupted frequently to ask questions. He inquired all about the circuit-breaker. He encouraged her to tell him all about the effect of this sudden wealth upon herself. He gave strict attention to her account of her new dresses, of parties she had attended. Sam gave all the facts such generous consideration that the dessert plates had been carried away before the last word was spoken. Freddy was stirring his coffee as she finished, and Sam, glancing up, saw that he was smiling quietly to himself.

"And so," he said gently, "you have all the money you need now. You don't have to worry and you don't have to work. You can dance, and go to teas, and play bridge. It's nice, isn't it?"

"Yes." Sam managed to nod calmly, although she could feel the rapid beating of her heart. "It's very nice."

Freddy continued to smile. "You like it, don't you? It's quite evident that you like it."

"Yes." Again Sam nodded. "I've never had very much of it before, you know, Freddy. I like it."

"Of course." He placed his coffee spoon carefully beside his cup. "You must have enjoyed yourself these last two months. You've been having a good time, haven't you, Sam?"

It had come. The thing that she had known to be inevitable, the thing that she had been struggling against throughout the meal had arrived. In the face of it she felt weak and helpless. She was able only to look up at him and to say quietly, "I'm sorry, Freddy. I'm terribly sorry."

"Why should you be sorry? Everybody likes to be happy, I imagine." His smile seemed to have become a fixture. He was smiling as he placed his napkin on the table and glanced at his watch. "Well," he said in a friendly, conversational tone, "it certainly has been great seeing you, Sam. I've enjoyed it tremendously, but now I'm afraid I'll have to be getting along. My train leaves in 20 minutes."

Sam gasped. "Your train! But—where are you going?"

"To New York. After that I'm not sure."

"But Freddy!" Sam was bewildered. "You can't go like this! Why, we haven't even begun to talk!"

"Haven't we?" Freddy suddenly seemed like a total stranger. His polite surprise as he questioned her was that of a casual acquaintance. "I thought we'd been doing quite a bit of talking. What else is there for us to talk about?"

"Everything!" Sam was frightened now, and desperately determined. "You simply can't go away like this! Why, don't you realize that you and I were—that we—"

OLD-TIME BAND HITS OBSTACLE

By International News Service

WOOSTER, O., Sept. 28—If the phrase, "see your dentist twice a year" had been coined and made familiar 75 years ago, O. C. Franks, court bailiff, would have less trouble than he has.

Franks is mobilizing a group of old-time musicians to make up a band at the Homecoming at Wayne county's fair this week.

"I find plenty of old timers who used to blow mean horns," Franks said, "but I'm having great difficulty getting men past 60 who have enough teeth to properly play a wind instrument."

TWINS PROMINENT IN SCHOOL SPORTS

By International News Service

DOVER, O., Sept. 28—Dover High school this year boasts three sets of twins connected with its athletics. Two sets are regular football players, while the other leads the cheering section.

Dale and Don Godfrey, the first a lineman, the latter a quarterback, closely resemble each other in facial features, but Dale outweighs Don 20 pounds. Sam and John Smith, the cheer leaders, are indistinguishable to one who is not always around them.

Fred and Frank Kelker, colored twins, are proving themselves valuable to Coach Herman Renrick. Frank, the larger, is an end and the fleetest man on the squad. Fred, a halfback, is speedy and shifty. Each of the Kelker boys made two touchdowns in the opening game of the season against Carrollton on Sept. 19.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Dicky Takes Precautions to Safeguard the Children.

It seemed an eternity, although, indeed, it was but a few hours that we of the farmhouse waited to hear the verdict upon the wounded, almost lifeless Chinese, whom Hank and Bill had found in the cornfield.

The doctor arrived within a few minutes after we did, and Lillian obeyed Katherine's injunction to "send him in a-running." He had no sooner entered the library than Dicky came out, outwardly calm, but really much excited, as I, who have conjugated his every mood and tense for years, knew very well.

"They don't need me until after the doctor has made his examination," he said, with an effort to appear nonchalant, "so I guess I'll proceed to make things safe for the democratic Grahams around here. Where are the kids?"

"With father, I suppose," I answered. "They were, a few minutes ago, and your mother has Baby Faith. Why?"

The question was like an explosion, for I could no longer keep back the terror which was consuming me—the fear that the Chinese who had demanded Marion's lock box might strike again in the same deadly fashion that had brought their recreant messenger so near death.

"Oh! nothing!" Dicky said airily, "except that it mightn't be a bad idea to keep 'em all in the house for the rest of the day. That playroom basement is the coolest spot there is anywhere and the upstairs veranda is cool, too. It is much better for them, really, than being out in the sun, and I know you'll feel better about it."

"Of course you're perfectly easy about them, yourself."

I was conscious that my voice was waspish and that I was taking out upon Dicky the hysterical fear which was mine for the children. But I could not help the outburst, and I knew also that there was truth in my petty retort—Dicky was as worried as I over this menace of the Chinese.

An Old Fear

"Absolutely unruffled." Dicky's smile was a bit wry, though creditable. "Now, if your aching to do something, you might go and look up the kids. That doctor's got to check up a lot of things before he makes a decision, and I want to say a word or two to the Chief. Where's Lil?"

The query was quick and sharp, and with a feeling of rising panic I saw that Dicky meant to set every member of the household at the task of guarding the farmhouse against the Chinese desperadoes who had almost done to death their messenger.

Dicky must share my fear, I told myself. It was a fear which had been with me ever since the first appearance of the frightened Chinese messenger at the farmhouse. The terror of the man when I had refused to surrender Marion's lock box, which the men employing him had commanded him to bring back to them, had communicated itself to me. Then when, in the Ticer farmhouse, I had been menaced by the Chinese outside the window who demanded the rice paper message which had been pinned to the cushion of my car, my fear had changed to panic. It was a panic not lessened by the knowledge that the man had meant to throw something blinding, disfiguring, into my face at my refusal to surrender the letter, and had only been prevented from carrying out his intention by my readiness in threatening him with the little silencer pistol Lillian had insisted upon my carrying.

I knew the persistence, malevolence, the determination of the men who had so cruelly hurt the poor chap stretched out unconscious in the library. If they had wreaked such vengeance upon a poor humble messenger who had tried faithfully to perform his mission, what might they not be planning for me who had defied their mandates upon two separate occasions?

Forgetting Herself

Never have I considered myself a coward, but as I went up the stairs to the nursery, I found myself going over all the accounts of Oriental tortures I ever had read. If I fell into their hands—and then with a passion of self-loathing, I realized that in my dread of what might happen to my own body I had forgotten for the moment something of infinitely more importance — the probability that these human fiends would try to strike at me through my children.

With a sob in my throat, I tore up the stairs to the nursery and burst in upon my mother-in-law.

"Is the baby here?" I gasped, utterly unrealizing what I was saying.
